On 31 January 2011 a representative of Chinese Taipei deposited an Instrument for the Participation of Fishing Entities dated 17 January 2011. The Instrument records that Chinese Taipei, as a fishing entity, agrees, subject to a subsequent written confirmation of the fulfilment of its legal requirements, to express its intent to be bound by the regime established by the Convention in accordance with Annex IV of the Convention.

ⁱ On 21 July 2010, the Republic of Chile notified the Depositary of the following in reference to the Republic of Peru's declaration made on signature (20 April 2010): "With respect to [the declaration made by Peru on the occasion of the signing of the Convention], the Government of Chile would like to express that its maritime spaces have been fully delimited by treaties in force and that the above-mentioned Convention and the Area of Application embodied in its Article 5 contain the principles and norms of International Law applicable to all Contracting Parties. Any declaration contrary to them is not valid, no opposable to any such Contracting Party." ⁱⁱ On 16 February 2011 (Note dated 9 February 2011), the Republic of Chile notified the Depositary of the following in reference to the Republic of Peru's notification made on 19 October 2010: "In relation to these declarations, the Republic of Chile reaffirms that its maritime spaces have been established under international law and are fully delimited by treaties in force. Accordingly, there are no such rights or spaces pending of delimitation with other States in the Area of Application of the above-mentioned Convention and any declaration contrary to these principles is not valid, no opposable to the Contracting Parties." ⁱⁱⁱ On ratifying the Convention, New Zealand declared that its ratification extended to Tokelau.

^{iv} On signature, the Republic of Peru made the following declaration (Note dated 29 March 2010): "... [T]hat the establishment of the Convention application area does not prejudice over the rights on maritime areas or maritime zones which are pending of delimitation according to the International Law and does not imply its recognition of unilateral decisions taken against the International Law. Likewise, Peru either as a non-Member Party of the 1982 United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea or as non-Member Party of the United Nations Agreement for the implementation of the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea Relating to the Conservation and Management of Straddling Fish Stock and Highly Migratory Fish Stocks, wishes to emphasize that these rules are applicable while they are part of the International Common Law or under the general principles of the Law."

^v On 19 October 2010, Peru sent a notification to the Depositary in respect of its declaration: "... [T]he Government of Peru would like to request to the Honourable Government of New Zealand, as Depositary for the Convention on the Conservation and Management of High Seas Fishery Resources in the South Pacific Ocean, the correction of the text of the Declaration the Government of the Republic of Peru submitted at the time of its signing as follows:

"The Republic of Peru, by virtue of Article 44, declares that the establishment of an area of application for this Convention does not prejudice rights over maritime zones or spaces pending of delimitation in accordance with international law and does not imply recognition of unilateral decisions contrary to international law. Likewise, given that Peru is not a Party to the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea of 10 December 1982 and to the Agreement for the Implementation of the Provisions of the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea of 10 December 1982 relating to the Conservation and Management of Straddling Fish Stocks and Highly Migratory Fish Stocks of 4 December 1995, Peru wishes to emphasize that these rules are applicable in so far as they are part of customary international law or reflect general principles of law."
